Few issues are as important as making sure children in the developing world survive diseases that are easily preventable elsewhere. This goal can be accomplished – but it will take a lot of hard work. UNICEF High School Clubs affirm the power of young people to make a major difference and help UNICEF save children’s lives.

The UNICEF High School Club program is a youth-led initiative that partners with the U.S. Fund for UNICEF to educate, advocate, and fundraise on behalf of UNICEF's lifesaving work.

A growing movement rooted in a belief that students have a vital role to play in helping the world's children survive, the program supports UNICEF's child survival work in more than 150 countries, and helps educate communities throughout the United States, giving students an opportunity to engage members of their families and communities on global humanitarian issues.

UNICEF High School Clubs set up booths on their school campuses and at festivals to promote children's issues and fundraise, write letters to elected officials, and participate in Trick-or-Treat for UNICEF and UNICEF Tap Project campaigns. They also produce benefit concerts, host international coffee hours, and write school newspaper editorials on UNICEF's work.
